

My practice is centered on cast glass and I explore negative structures and suggested forms in glass solids. The voids are organised first and external structures are built to encapsulate these spaces. The works explore space – using glass as a substrate activated by light. The material qualities of glass – transparency and translucency – are the agents within the work that create the dialogue between voids and solids.

Richard Whiteley, 2013

